How do humanists tell right from wrong?

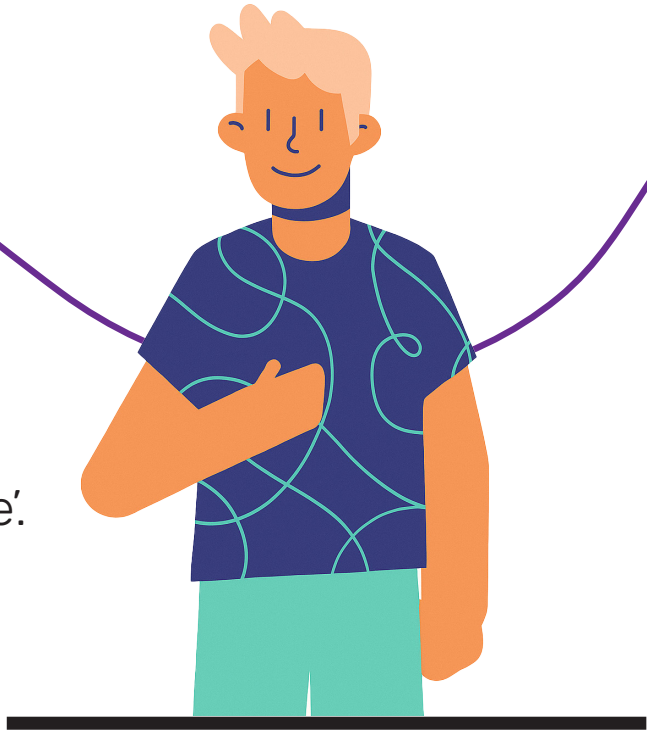

Humanists believe morality comes from our shared human needs and our ability to understand the consequences of our actions.

1

Humanists maintain that people don't need to believe in gods to tell right from wrong.

2

Humanists try to reduce harm and increase well-being, treating others as they'd like to be treated. This is sometimes referred to as 'the Golden Rule'.

3